

REMARKS

This amendment merely corrects a formal matter (i.e., a typographical error) without changing the scope of the claims. Moreover, this amendment is directed to a trivial informality which does not significantly effect the vital formal requirements of the application. However, it is believed that the amendment is needed for proper disclosure and/or protection of the invention, and requires no substantial amount of additional work on the part of the Office. Specifically, correcting the typographical error requires no additional search or examination. Also, the claims remain patentable for the same reasons as previous. The correction was not presented earlier because the typographical error was small and not noticed by anyone until recently.

The typographical error was discussed with the Examiner via telephone, and the Examiner recommended/requested that the correction be done via an amendment under rule 312.
